The New Cape Coats and All the Other New and Stylish Coats

For Children from 2 to 6 Years of Age IN THE BABY SHOP, THIRD FLOOR

Revealing the most exclusive, beautiful, and interesting fashions that the little folks have had in many a day. Every model fittingly recognizes the inimitable beauty and distinctiveness that Children's Garments

Many mothers have been anxious to know the new and authentic fashions in Coats for their little ones, and the answer is in this presentation which we shall make today.

The Exclusive One-of-a-Kind Model Coats Are:

RICH BROADCLOTHS, HANDSOME SERGES, ELEGANT VELVETS,

BEAUTIFUL FUR-TRIMMED STYLES. THE NEW CAPE MODES. NEW GIRDLE COATS.

Some of the Beauty as Revealed by the Detailed Descriptions.

A single-cape style is of light blue broadcloth, with a sitched belt ending at each side, with trimmings of crochet buttons; handsome floral satin lining. Rich and handsome is the dark brown cordured with kimono sleeves, having wide silk girdle far down on the skirt, and oval buckles covered to match. Another Brown Broadcloth Coat has a Roman-striped ribbon girdle, laced in by straps of the broad-cloth.

Russian green broadcloth makes a handsome, simple style.

PLAIN COLORED SERGES, BROADCLOTHS, CORDUROYS, WOOL MIXTURES,

The double-cape style is beautifully portrayed in a novel yellow-and-black plaid Scotch woolen, made em-pire effect, with inverted box plait in back for fullness. Two very elegant styles of fine soft brown broad-cloth, one trimmed with Janet fur and the other with beaver. These are prettily gathered and trimmed with girdles of velvet and silk, the front of one being trim-med from collar to girdle with tiny crochet buttons very close together. Black Velvet Coats, with plaited messaline girdles and crochet buttons.

The Plainer Coats Are Shown in Many Styles and Fabrics.

'THE MAN OF THE HOUR" AT MOORE'S GARDEN

Moore's Garden the coming week will disclose many standard photographic features, the main attraction on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday being the latest production of the Shuhert's, "The Man of the Hour," featuring the favorite star of Brondway, Robert Warwick, in the title role of Mr. Brondway, the auccessful drama in which Mr. Warwick achieved his greatest histrionic laurels. He enacts the same role before the camera.

The play fancinatingly presents the rewards, the dangers, and the pitfalls of modern political life. It is a constant succession of strong dramatic scenes. The characters are types that one meets in everyday walk of life and practically every phase of politics is represented.

"Mac," the Star Office Boy, Joins the Cos Cob Society

'Ah, Dat Ain't No Society, Dat's a Mutual Admiration Club," Algernon Confides After Making His Social Debut Among the Folk from His Own Home State.

Algernon McGuirk—he doesn't use his first name—broke into society last week. "Mac" is The Heraid's all-star measurement force. His mother brought him to Washington from a Middle Western State a few years ago. "Mac" stuck. He refused to relinquish the educational advantages of the National Capital. But, about his social debut. "Mac" learned recently that he was eligible to membership in the Cos Cob Society—one of Washington's numerous State societies, and which represents the commonwealth of "Mac's" nativity. He went to a meeting of his new society last week. Here are his impressions, expurgated in part:

"Ah that ain't no society; that's a mutual admiration club. Them guys don't want no society. What they want is a nice loud phonograph—the kind they have down at Rooney's—and have an all-night session where the entertainers make second They was a speech or thought he session where the entertainers make second They was a speech or thought he session where the entertainers make second They was a speech or thought he session where the entertainers make speeches about their State and the State's men and Janes.

"I looked in at the meeting. The first thing they did was to haul one of the hicks out of the mothballs and turn him loose on one of these here small-time pals of the most nifty State in the Union' speeches.

"To believe that guy, his State had a corner on every thing in the country, from blue sky to blue deviis. If all that buil was true, the State would be all but "Ain't this you?" he says.

was true, the State would be all but one town, with fifty business sections and so many suburbs they'd have to build a bridge across to Ireland to take care of the retired policemen and Tam-many chiefs.

"About that time I was ready to go.

"'Ain't this you?' he says.
"Yes, it's me, or it was when I come in," I says.

"He looks at me puzzled like for a minthe looss at me pursed make for a min-ute, like I was a piece of pasteboard he'd just pulled out of the Irish stew. "'Well, I certin'ly am glad to see yuh,' he says, and he seems to mean it. "Yuh ain't got nothin' on me." I says. "What about the refreshments" "Mac"

"What about the was asked.
"Can yuh beat that?" said the office boy. "I clean forgot 'em. I musia been too proud of my native State to think Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. II.-Armed with a billiard cue, Mrs. Frank Shulasky, aged fifty years, drove a force of twenty workmen from her property at Hudson because she claimed they were setting a curb there. She hit several of the men over the head and held up operations until Chief of Folice Kohn Peterson and a few policemen arrived. The woman gave the cops battle, but the chief managed to slip handcuffs on her. Mrs. Shulasky then managed to make her escape with the rarms still shackled. Friends of the woman made threats, and fearing a general riot the police called on the State constability for aid. After a search of a few hours Mrs. Shulasky was again placed under arrest.
